Halloween

RCMP ready

"Be prepared."

That's the motto local RCMP are using in preparation for the upcoming Halloween night.

"We're not really expecting a lot but we're prepared if anything should happen," says RCMP Cpl. Tom Turner.

Turner said they will be increasing the number of officers patrolling during Halloween because of the weather and the night it falls on. "The only reason we're putting extra on is the weather is so nice and it falls on a Friday night," Turner explained.

Last year three youths were picked up in the area of 53 Street after complaints they had been harassing younger kids and taking their candy. One of the three appeared in court on a charge of theft under $50.

The extra manpower this year will include five two-man cars, two men on foot patrols and two or three units of volunteer firemen. All the units will be in radio contact and dispatched from the local RCMP office.

Turner says the fire department is being brought in as an "extra set of eyes" on the street.

But extra manpower isn't the only thing the RCMP are doing for the Halloween festivities.

Last week Const. Yves Robitaille and the Great Root Bear from A&W toured Eldorado and St. Anthony's grades 1, 2 and 3 classes.

The two were handing out special reflective bags for Halloween along with outlining safety tips for the kids. Some of the tips included suggestions on costumes that don't hinder hearing, sight or breathing.

Other ideas like going in groups, not going into strangers' houses or cars, wearing a bright costume and not eating the "goodies" until the parents have checked them out.

Mayor says new fire hall has priority

By Frank Ryan

Bob Mayhew is looking forward to the next three years as mayor of Drayton Valley.

Mayhew, who has lived in Drayton Valley for the past 32 years, became the first mayor in 15 years to be elected by acclamation. It's his third term as mayor after serving four years in the early '70s as a councillor.

Asked how he felt about being elected by acclamation he said, "I was very pleased." The mayor added that it also meant that a significant amount of people were happy with his efforts during the past six years.

He also stated that being elected by acclamation was a trend across the country. "It's the times, the economy," he added.

Commenting on the poor

Mayor Bob Mayhew

turnout at the polls (only 621 people voted in Drayton Valley) the mayor stated, "People are basically satisfied with the operation. They have no grave concerns."

Mayor Mayhew, who is heading into his 11th year on town council, has set some goals.

He wants to hold the line on taxes and continue to run the town as a business. He's not in favor of debenture borrowing and paying interest.

One of his priorities is better facilities for the fire department.

Mayor Mayhew revealed last week that the county of Parkland had backed off on any financial support for the town's proposed administration complex (which was to include a fire hall) because of the situation with a new municipal district. The mayor indicated that the town wasn't likely to proceed with a new fire hall without the county's backing.

Because of the Drayton Valley fire department answer a significant number of calls in the county of Parkland, the mayor doesn't feel it's fair Drayton Valley taxpayers foot the entire bill.

On the issue of a proposed arena/complex, the mayor doesn't see any rush. He sees an arena being built as the first phase when finances are available.

The mayor expects the town to establish a layout plan for the 34-acre proposed arena site next year. Calling the acquisition of the land, south of West Valley Park as one of the best deals the town has ever made, the mayor says part of the land will be set aside for park expansion and the balance will be zoned highway industrial and sold to recover some of the land costs.

Commenting on the present arena, the mayor says things are working okay. "There's no sense panicking," he added.

While better fire department facilities and a new arena/complex are down the road, the mayor is very excited about the new strand board plant. He expects to see it in operation sometime before Christmas.

The mayor says the mill has created lots of activity here, by providing employment. Employees at the plant have also purchased more than a dozen homes in town. Mayhew also credits a lot of the highway work in the area to the plant.

One of the mayor's immediate concerns though, is the number of businesses closing their doors. "It tears my heart out," he commented on a friend who went out of business because of finances.

Mayor Mayhew has been talking to government officials about the problems, pushing them for some answers.

Theft

Youth gets jail

A Drayton Valley youth was sentenced to four months in jail for his part in a break and enter and theft last July.

The 18-year-old was sent to jail after pleading guilty to four charges of break and enter and theft and one charge of break and enter and intent. The charges stemmed from an incident at Rick's Sporting Goods which ended with RCMP chasing two thieves through the roof and down a back alley. The chase came after RCMP observed the two during a stake-out at the store.

The youth was sentenced under the Young Offenders Act because he was 17-years-old at the time of the incident.

Council sworn in

Month wait

It may be next month before Drayton Valley's new town council is officially sworn in.

Council was scheduled to meet last Thursday, just three days after the municipal election, but the session was called off.

On the recommendation of Mayor Bob Mayhew, council will go through a familiarization session before tackling their new portfolios. "It's very difficult at first. Everyone's full of vim and vigor," the mayor explained.

Mayor Mayhew stated that this is the first time in the 11 years that he has been involved in council, that a familiarization session has been arranged. Representatives of Municipal Affairs and legal consultants are to be involved.

No date has been set for the first town council meeting.

New plan

Special topics for chamber

If the Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce are looking for some projects, they don't have to look any further than the town's new general municipal plan.

The plan, which will be the subject of two open house meetings this Thursday and Friday will give the chamber's tourist and economic development committees some interesting angles to pursue.

"The town is on the eastern edge of a large area of undeveloped land which offers significant tourism potential, especially in conjunction with the Brazeau Dam reservoir," the document states.

Besides that angle, the tourist committee can direct some of their energy toward attracting users off Highway 22 into the downtown area. A better location for their tourist information booth would be a start.

The economic development committee, who will unveil a new promotional brochure later in the month, might look into the potential coal development to the northeast along with following any spinoffs from the new Sturdi Wood strandboard plant.

With the petroleum and agricultural industries experiencing some tough times, the report suggests that a good alternative is lumber and tourism.

When the open house meetings are held later this week, it is hoped that the chamber will be well represented.

In fact, anyone with an interest in the town's future should make an effort to attend these meetings. The plan involves every aspect of community life from plans for the downtown area to some much-needed highway development.

One way to attract more tourists here is to move Drayton Valley to a warmer climate!

Council might consider evening meetings

The poor turnout at last Tuesday's municipal election didn't come as any surprise.

Some people are blaming it on voter apathy. But, how can the voters be blamed when those running for office did little in the way of running a campaign. Besides, there weren't any issues to get the voters out.

Another very important factor to consider is, that Drayton Valley didn't have a mayoralty race.

The 621 who turned out to vote in Drayton Valley is the worst turnout in four elections. Three years ago 1,521 people or almost 60 per cent went to the polls. The total in '80 was 1,042 and in '77 the voter count was 1,123.

As The Western Review's town council reporter, we look forward to working with the mayor and his councillors.

It will be interesting to see if anything is done about the Wednesday night (private) meetings they hold before the regular council meetings. And, if any thought is given to changing or rotating the council meetings.

With town council meetings every third Thursday at 8:30 a.m., it's hard for the public to attend, and as a result, get involved in local politics. If some of their meetings were held in the evening, more people would be able to attend.

But, that also presents a problem. The present council chambers don't have much room for the public. Maybe three or four council meetings a year could be held in the nearby Legion Hall, at which time the public could be encouraged to participate in the democratic process.

Gas outlets omitted

Two gas pump outlets in town were missed in a story last week on gas bar hours.

H&B Plumbing, the Target gas outlet on 50 Avenue, are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. They are closed Sunday.

And, the gas pumps at Mayhew Motors are open from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

MacLeods

No changes are planned

No changes are planned for the MacLeods store in Drayton Valley.

The Winnipeg-based company announced last week that 60 chain stores will convert to hardware from general merchandise. However, the move will not affect Drayton Valley, as it is a dealer store.

Meanwhile in Red Deer, 22 employees are still in shock over the planned closure of the department store. The company plans to open a much smaller outlet in 12 to 14 months at a new location.

Open letter

Federal Tory's support diminishing

Dear Joe,

I hope you know that I support you and have since you entered federal politics. I am very upset by the lack of direction and financial management so very apparent as each month goes by.

My first disappointment was when your party knuckled under to the pensioners who demanded full indexing rather than coverage to their pensions over three per cent inflation. Most of those pensioners live better now than they ever did during their working lives.

You still pay indexed pensions to retired government employees. You know that the private sector doesn't enjoy indexed pensions and many, including myself, have no private pensions at all nor is there money after the high taxes and cost of living to buy pensions.

You collect taxes in a largely unfair manner, then send cheques out for welfare schemes that, in many households, is not needed. Just the cost of sending those cheques is over $10 each.

The PGRT was loudly proclaimed an unfair and destructive and would be immediately cancelled, but it took two years and many divisive and hard feelings to have it removed.

A professor in Calgary has done a study that shows that Alberta, through PGRT subsidies and equalization payments, has contributed $95 billion more to confeder-tion than it received in the last few years.

We supported and subsidized Eastern Canada when oil prices were high and rising, yet now that our prime industries are hurting we are not getting prime prices for our oil and gas and, in fact, our prices are being forced lower and lower with the threat of foreign imports. Please explain what Albertan's benefits are in confederation.

There was a promise to cut the budget deficit, yet in two years the Conservative government has increased the per capita debt by $3,000 or $70 billion. In 16 years the Trudeau government raised the debt to about $160 billion or close to $7,000 per capita. Would you consider telling your constituents how much the service charge is on this huge debt? It seems to me to be presently about $1,300 per capita and increasing at about $420 per year. When do you expect it will reverse?

Joe, I started the year with 10 employees and now have two. My company hasn't been able to pay my wages since May. Can I be blamed for losing faith? There is no business nor businessman that would be permitted to be in debt 2½ times its gross income, yet that is where Canada sits at the present.

Canada is paying one-quarter of its work force not to work. At least 20 times in the last five years people have turned down work with me because, considering the cost of clothes, travel, the inconvenience of being away from home and generous UIC payments, it was better to stay at home.

One last comment sir: since regulation by population works against Alberta and subjects us to the most outrageous abuses, why won't you and the Alberta caucus demand an elected regional senate: a triple E senate; or are you already working on it?

I am writing this as an open letter, as there are many thousands of your constituents who would like to know the solution you and your party propose and an open reply would be welcome.

Thank you for your attention.

Yours truly,
Rex Gray

Ponte reappealing tax penalty

By Gary Logie
Local landowner and businessman Dave Ponte is still responsible for $20,446 in property taxes, along with a $3,680 late-payment penalty.

Ponte took his concerns to town council earlier this month, but his appeal was denied.

"At this time the decision is the same, the penalty is still there," said town manager Manny Deol.

Deol said the 18 per cent annual interest rate on overdue accounts is the maximum allowed under the municipal act and it works very well. "Why pay your taxes when your money is making more in the banks earning a higher interest rate? Now we're people miss the deadline."

Top vote-getter in last week's elections, Councillor Tom McGee agreed. "We have a 18 per cent penalty bylaw in effect and the council's decision was unanimous to uphold it" in

Ponte's case. "It's a matter of principle."

This doesn't sit too well with Ponte who intends to appeal the decision again once council reconvenes.

He feels there is room for "compromise" and has offered to pay one and a half per cent per month that the account is overdue.

Ponte also said, "there were some problems with the presentation" and "I feel good that council has been receptive to my concerns. I'm not trying to throw stones," he said, "I'm trying to approach it diplomatically."

The legitimacy of Ponte's appeal, the tax bill was sent to an old address and went unnoticed while he was out of town for four months, is no excuse "under the government act" concerning such issues, said town manager Deol.

But there may be some hope when Ponte re-addresses council because of the recent election. "With the new council he may get a new count," in his favor, said McGee.

Mayor Bob Mayhew was out of town and unavailable for comment.

New air service

Red Deer run filling void, pockets — Wade

By Lorne Christensen
 Things are taking off for Ron Wade.

Wade, owner of Drayton Valley Air Services, has expanded his business into Red Deer.

"Both operations are tied into each other but they are wholly independent," Wade explains.

He opened his Red Deer branch three weeks ago and says so far business has been what they expected.

"Even with the slow economy it has really taken off," Wade says. And taking off it is.

They offer flights every Monday, Wednesday and Friday leaving in the morning and returning in the evening. Cargo has been one of the big items so far, according to Wade.

"Charters are the main thing," he added, pointing out seasonal hunting trips are also available. The expansion into the "void" in the Red Deer market has been a good move, Wade says.

They added one more pilot to the company and are basically using the same equipment as before, he adds. A pilot is on call 24 hours a day in Red Deer for customers.

But the success in Red Deer hasn't made Wade anxious to expand more. "It's one step at a time," he points out saying he has "no immediate" plans for any other expansion.

Bennefield battling space problems

The loss of the Elementary B school gym has caused a lot of sleepless nights for recreation director Calvin Bennefield.

Because the gym at Elementary B has been lost for the year due to renovations and use of the renovated gym at H.W. Pickup was delayed a month, it has resulted in a number of problems for Bennefield.

The town's recreation director, who is responsible for booking groups into the five schools says, "We had to shift a few groups because the schools they wanted just weren't available."

"We tried to accommodate everyone," Bennefield added.

Even with that, the recreation director admits he knows of some groups that are not happy, mainly because they didn't get the schools they wanted.

Besides the loss of the Elementary B gym for the year and the delay getting into H.W. Pickup, Bennefield was faced with other major problems. For example, nothing can be booked into Eldorado after 9 p.m. and at Frank Maddeck, the gym is not available on Friday nights.

The busiest school in town is St. Anthony's where 10 local groups make use of that facility every week.

Sekura

Saddle bronc champ

By Lorne Christensen

Travis Sekura is good at taking advantages of last chances.

The 22-year-old Drayton Valley saddle bronc rider proved it twice in winning the Lakeland finals in Camrose recently.

In the finals Sekura was sitting in third spot with one round left to go. He had 50 points, 10 behind second and 30 behind first.

"It came down to the last horse," Sekura recalled.

And the last horse proved to be a lucky one for the local cowboy.

"I knew I had to ride it, if I did I could probably win it (the final round)," Sekura explained about the thoughts going through his mind as he climbed into the saddle.

"I knew he was going to be hard to ride and if I didn't try hard I might get dusted," Sekura added.

But instead of getting bucked off Sekura rode the horse to a 74, three points ahead of the cowboy in second place. Enough to give him the top score for the round, the top points and the saddle bronc title.

For the self-confessed "long-shot" it was the second time he had left it to the last and came out on top.

Going into the final round of the season Sekura was sitting in third spot overall. Again it came down to the last horse and again Sekura was successful. On that final ride before the finals he won enough to move into second place overall.

"It was the last rodeo and the last horse," he pointed out.

But the four-year veteran of the saddle-bronc riding takes it all in stride.

And it's working.

Sekura now has won saddles the last three years of his six on the rodeo circuit. Two years ago he won a saddle on the Wild Rose circuit. Last year he won the all-around saddle in Youngstown and now this year he claimed the saddle for the saddle bronc title.

"Seems like I get lucky every year, I didn't think I was going to get one (a saddle) this year," Sekura explained, adding it depended on the finals.

"Now I'll rest up for a while, we're pretty well done for the year," he says. A year which included more than 70 rodeos and as many as six in one weekend.

"It's lots of miles very quickly," he says about the travelling time.

Eleven nominated

Eleven nominations have been received for the 1986 Carling O'Keefe Award of Merit, the top individual award in amateur baseball in Alberta.

Those nominated are:

• Doug Herbert, of Stettler, a long-time worker in amateur baseball who organized the highly successful Canadian midget championships this year;

• Fort Saskatchewan umpire Nick Rochanesky, a deaf mute who has umpired for 35 years;

• Wally Footz, of Edmonton, vice-president of the Alberta Amateur Baseball Association and a major force on the North-East Zone Sports Council for many years;

• Lorne Ross, of St. Albert, a "sparkplug" in minor baseball in St. Albert for the past decade;

• Dr. Gerald Beckie, president of the Taber Minor Baseball Association since 1975;

• Michael D. Pawluk, of Two Hills, a long-time coach and president of the Two Hills and District Minor Baseball Association;

• Murray Service of Calgary, former secretary-treasurer of the Alberta Baseball Association, former umpire-in-chief of the Alberta Baseball Umpires Association, and founding member of the Canadian Baseball Umpires Advisory Committee;

• Ben Dorval, an outstanding coach for the past 15 years at all age levels in Fort Saskatchewan;

• Ray Brown, of Edmonton, head coach of the Team Alberta junior squad and ABA Coach of the Year in 1982;

• Elmer Schielke, of Provost, past-president of the Alberta Baseball Association, who was instrumental in developing Provost's minor baseball program into one of the best in the province;

• Ray Williams, of Calgary, a 31-year veteran of minor baseball, including five years as president of the North-West Calgary Little League.

The Carling O'Keefe Award of Merit, introduced in 1966, recognizes persons whose conduct, dedication and activities have made a "valuable and lasting contribution to the development and betterment of amateur baseball," says Ron Hayter, of Edmonton, chairman of the award committee.

Last year's recipient was Joe Goshko, of Vegreville. The 1986 award will be announced and presented at a news conference Nov. 3 in Edmonton.

Sport Council deluged with requests

By Alan Hobson

To the uninitiated eye, it's a curious sight indeed.

Perched atop a mountain with thousands of feet of ski run falling away below them, the bizarre pre-race ritual begins.

With eyes closed, the racer shifts their body to the right, then left, drops suddenly to a deep crouch, then instantly reaches for the sky.

This is not some superstitious worship of gods of good luck. Nor is it a comical attempt to play to the crowd. This is a serious form of mental preparation practiced by thousands of athletes round the world.

At the international level, just about everyone has the same amount of talent and physical preparation, experts say. Often, the only separator between first and fifth is what's in an athlete's mind.

Sport psychologists know this. That's why in recent years, they've begun to play an increasingly important role in all phases of athletes' lives.

One of the mind games these psychologists are teaching athletes is called mental imagery. Studies show that if athletes review in their minds exactly what they plan to do during their performance, they can create microscopic movements of the muscles that will actually be used in the performance itself.

In the case of skiers, by mentally asking the course beforehand, they actually ski it physically on a minute scale. Moments later, when they burst from the starting gate with the ideas fresh in their minds and muscles, the imagined can become real.

For the last year, the Alberta Sport Council has been deluged with some $2 million in requests for funding into research related to these and many other aspects of what has become known as "sport science."

Appeals have been received for everything from sport psychology and biomechanics (the study of the effects of forces, like gravity, on the body) to physiology (the study of the functions of the body and its organs).

Dear Valued Customer,

It brings me great pleasure to be able to say that, at a time when many other companies are curtailing their investments in the West, Beaver Lumber is investing more than ever.

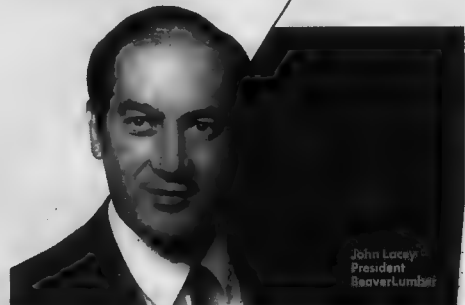

But that's really not so surprising. After all, both partners in Beaver Lumber are deeply committed Western companies (Beaver Lumber was founded in Saskatchewan in 1906 and Crownmart started businesses in Manitoba in 1910).

As a result of Beaver and Crownmart coming together, you'll see a great many improvements taking place at our stores. I invite you to visit the location nearest you. You'll discover that, when it comes to Value, Service, Convenience and Selection, no one serves you better than Beaver Lumber.

Thank you for your loyal patronage. We look forward to serving you soon.

Possible $750,000 debt

Golf club will borrow more money for expansion

By Lorne Christensen

The Drayton Valley golf club could go up to three-quarters of a million dollars in debt following a motion passed by members last week.

The motion, to borrow up to an additional $550,000 along with the present loan of $200,000, met little opposition at the meeting.

Thirty voted in favor of borrowing the funds while six opposed and three abstained. The 59 members at the meeting represented only seven per cent of the total membership of almost 800.

The money will be used to complete the on-going expansion project making the facility an 18-hole course. Club president Les Bannerman told the 38 members present at the meeting they have a zero bank balance.

"We'll probably survive the winter," Bannerman added, pointing out they are within seven to 10 days of completing the work on the new seven holes being constructed.

The number of days left translates into $12,000 to $15,000, according to Bannerman who said if they don't do it now the project will be set back by a few weeks next spring, if they have the money.

Bannerman added a "target date" for playing on the new seven by late August of 1987. But he also explained to those in attendance they won't be playing on the new holes if they don't get some money.

He estimated it will cost about $800,000 in total to complete the new seven and renovate the existing nine into 11 holes. "To date it's cost us just about $300,000 for the seven holes back there," he explained.

Bannerman pointed out he expects the rest of the project will be easier and cheaper to complete. "We had to clear just about five holes off, a couple of them were real challenging," the golf president explained. The summer's wet weather also added to the delay, according to Bannerman who called the month of July a "write-off."

He said the remaining holes to be worked on "will be a pleasure."

"It shouldn't cost any more to complete the remaining 11 than the other seven,"

he added.

Bannerman then stressed the $550,000 sum the executive was "recommending" he borrowed was the maximum they could handle in terms of debt, and not necessarily what is needed to finish. "An additional $300,000 will probably finish it," he explained.

One member expressed concern the debt load may be an "anchor around the neck" of the golf club.

But with the large majority vote the executive now has the go-ahead to borrow the money.

"We have to convince the bank now," Bannerman said following the meeting.

Robina Baker school dominates Tomahawk trot

More than 180 runners trotted the trails in Tomahawk last week.

The competitors from area schools were taking part in the annual trail trot in Tomahawk.

Trevor Kryako from Robina Baker school in Devon won the pre-school to Grade 3 event over 7 kilometres.

In the girls eight and under class Andrea Hennig from Graminia school won in a time of three minutes 32 seconds, with Terry Varze from Robina Baker, taking the boys' event in 3:12. The team event for girls and boys, eight and under, went to both Robina Baker squads.

In nine and under, Robina Baker's Nicolene Dechame took first in 3:15 with Harley Smith taking the boys' crown in 3:10. The team event, for both boys and girls, again went to Robina Baker.

In the 10-year-old age group Lisa Donald, from Robina Baker won in three minutes even with the boys' winner Kevin Richter from Seba Beach crossing the finish line in 2:55. Robina Baker teams won both the boys' and girls' team events in the age group.

Tasha Watson continued Robina Bakers' domination with a first in the 11-year-old girls' group by finishing in eight minutes and 52 seconds over the 2.2 kilometre event. Lyle Gourk from Meridian Heights school took the boys' event in nine minutes even. Robina Baker captured the girls' team event with Graminia taking the boys' team event.

For the 12 year olds Graminia's Saskia Van Woudenberg took first in 9:13 with Roger Korn from Mer-Runners elbow for room at the start of the 11-year-old girls' event. Meridian Heights also won the first place spot in 8:13. Meridian Heights also won the boys' team event.

Jennifer Snider from Meridian Heights took the girls' 13-year-old group in 10:52 with Leslie Korn, also from Meridian, taking the boys' event in 8:09.

Trudy Neudorf from Duffield won the girls' 14-year-old group in 10:31 with Billy Neudorf, also from Duffield, taking the boys' race in 8:54.

In the 52 km events Frank Maddock high school's Rick Day won in a time of 25:46 with fellow FMHS student Cheryl Lamoureux taking the girls' senior high event. In the men's open Jim Glasgow from Robina Baker won in 21:09 with Sharon McLeod from Meridian Heights winning the ladies' open in 31:55.

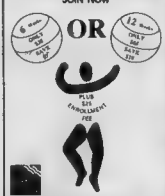

Robina Baker school had the most participants with 58 competitors.

Hockey scores

Strike Oilfield came away from mighty mile action last week with one win and one tie.

Strike dumped Mack and Mann Trucking 9-2 before tying Rick's Sporting Goods at 1-1.

Devils

Three weekend wins

The Drayton Valley Devils chalked up three Heritage Junior B hockey league victories last weekend.

The three wins gives the Devils a perfect 4-0 record. They will try and make it five straight when they host the Rocky Mountain House Rockets this Friday, 8:30 p.m. at the Centennial Civic Arena.

The Devils kept the opposing goaltenders busy as they netted 31 goals and allowed just seven in the three contests.

They came out Friday and humiliated the Spruce Grove Broncos 15-1 in their home opener. Twenty-four hours later, they dumped the visiting Barrhead Elks 8-2. And, on Sunday travelled to Hobbema where they posted an 8-1 decision.

Bair Shimbashi, Darren Fedorus and Troy Kelly had two-goal efforts against Spruce Grove. Defenceman Sheldon Dunham had one goal and five assists.

The Broncos, who also lost 10-2 to the Devils in an earlier league game, were badly outplayed as they trail with more than 100 minutes assessed in the first period.

Sheldon Dunham

Eight players shared in the Devils' scoring as they dumped Barrhead. Robin Cockwill, Everett Ness, Mike Benoit, Grant McGinn, Trent Pankewicz, Dean Mulgrew, Trevor Cey and Shimbashi also had the goals. Dunham also had two assists in that contest.

Brad Pankewicz, who has returned home after playing with Fort Saskatchewan in the Alberta Junior A loop had a goal and four assists in the win at Hobbema. Jeff Thiel and Dunham had two goals each.

While the Devils were winning, the Andrew Accs dropped out of the league. Just last weekend Lacombe withdrew. That leaves Rimby, Rocky, Hobbema, Barrhead, Spruce Grove and Drayton Valley.

Goaltender Dwayne Lambert suffered a knee injury in the lopsided win over Spruce Grove. Bill Adler, Jason Trenchuk and Bills are also injured.

Yellowhead school division

Two recommendations approved on proposed M.D.

Two recommendations regarding the proposed establishment of a Drayton Valley Municipal District, have been approved by the Yellowhead School Division's Board of Trustees.

The recommendation; one, that the board write to the minister of Municipal Affairs requesting a delay in any decision on the proposal until its effects on the YSD are known; the other, that Nichols Applied Management be requested to prepare a report on the effects of such a proposal on the YSD, caused considerable debate.

L.D. representative Bill Mahon, who was invited to join the discussion, was perturbed that the board had not acted sooner. However, it was explained that "it had repeatedly been stressed to the board", the proposal was only a feasibility study.

Lack of support from M.I.A.s It was also clear from ensuing discussions that all trustees felt local M.I.A.s Ian Reid and Peter Trynchy had been less than supportive in resisting the proposal. One trustee went so far as to intimate that Trynchy had promised government money to reimburse the division for any budgetary loss incurred, should the proposal go through.

Later, another trustee, Angie Catterall, suggested that the board not only notify the minister of Municipal Affairs on their feelings, but also the opposition leaders as this "may effect more results."

Trustee Chairperson Debbie Kellerman, asked sarcastically if Catterall wanted to ruin the excellent rapport which they had with their M.I.A. to which Catterall replied, "Yes."

Mahon also stated that the feasibility study for the proposed municipal district was based on out-of-date information, was slanted and some important figures had not been brought to light. He further expressed disquiet that L.D. 14's application to become a municipal district, which they submitted before Drayton Valley, had been put on a "side-track" and left "in limbo" while the Drayton Valley proposal forged ahead.

All in all, the trustees were seriously troubled about trying to stop the pro posal "after the horse had bolted," particularly in view of the recent plebiscite.

SCHOOL NOTEBOOK

Elementary 'B'

Special education classes have now moved into their new portable facilities in front of the school. They seem to be making out pretty well in the cramped quarters but are probably looking forward to moving back into the renovated school next year.

Students and parents can look forward to seeing results for the first semester Nov. 10 as report cards are released.

Two days later parents should be aware their children will be leaving the school 45 minutes early as the teachers have their monthly staff meeting.

But before being released early that day some of them will enjoy listening to renowned Canadian author Cora Taylor do readings from her various books.

H.W. Pickup

The school will play host to an international tour of students giving first-hand accounts of life in war-torn and suppressed countries tomorrow.

The tour will also be at an open discussion in the Legion Hall at 7 p.m.

A Halloween dance will be held Friday evening and is sure to attract all kinds of 'scary' things boys and girls.

Mr. Braitenbach's homeroom received a 'piz za feed' last Friday for selling the most magazine subscriptions in the cross-town fund-raising blitz.

The school raised more than $21,000, providing everyone's cheques are good. The school reports they have already had to send some back NSF.

The students' union will receive around $7,000 for the students' effort.

St Anthony's

St. A's will once again be seeking sponsorship for the annual Multiple Sclerosis read-a-thon.

The kick-off gets underway tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. in the gym with presentations from MS.

Friday will be fun at school as the elementary and primary students whoop it up for Halloween during the day, with the jr. high students taking over in the evening.

Newsletters went out this week and they will be followed by report card next Monday.

Nov. 5 and 6 parent teacher interviews are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. and 9:15 a.m. respectively.

They also received a visit from the RCMP and the Root Bear last week as they talked about Halloween safety with the elementary students.

Breton Elementary

The school is gearing up for Halloween with an assembly this Thursday, followed by a parade on Friday.

The school is also getting excited over the arrival of Alberta Culture's travelling museum which arrives Nov. 5. The museum will be open to students during the day and the general public is welcome from 6:30-9 p.m.

The caravan has features on dinosaurs from Alberta, and the one-room school house.

The school also reports their buddy system is working extremely well. The program matches Grade 4 students up with Grade 1s in hopes of speeding up integration into the system.

Eldorado

The parent association's monthly meeting will be Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. The guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Leroy Sloan, the county's assistant school superintendent. He will address parents' concerns over pupil-teacher ratios.

The parent association is also starting their annual 30-cent-a-cup soup program, which runs through winter.

The Leduc Health Unit's Doula rise program will come in handy following Halloween as it is set to go Nov. 5, followed by weekly rises until May.

Eldorado is also holding children's book sales excellent Christmas presents, we hear! daily in its library.

The school also received a special visit from the RCMP and the Root Bear last Wednesday.

County schools are closed Remembrance Day, Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Exchange student

Fraser family finds Finnish friend in Taru

By Gary Logie

They were worlds apart, but now they're one big happy family.

To see foreign exchange student Taru Kaupinen sitting in Norma and Lee Frasers' living room chatting about life in Drayton Valley compared to Taru's hometown of Rauma, Finland, people would think she has been here longer than three short months.

But that's how long it has been since the Frasers picked her up at the Edmonton International Airport and brought her home with them.

The idea of an exchange student was first brought to the Frasers' attention through a newspaper article and became reality by enrolling the American-Scandinavian Student Exchange.

The Frasers provide all lodging costs, while Taru provides her own "mad money".

Now the Frasers are learning "what it's like to have an older teenage daughter," says Lee.

"She's fitting in very well all around," adds Norma, "she helps around the house. She's not a guest, she's one of the family and does things just like the other kids."

The other kids are 11-year-old Brent and 13-year-old Robyn, Taru's adopted siblings.

And Taru likes having younger family members, as she is used to being the youngest of two girls.

"It feels good to hear them tell their friends things about their sister," Taru says. "It's nice to have them around."

And just like normal Canadian families she "teases Brent and borrows things like makeup and clothes from Robyn or just talks about things girls talk about," she says.

And she accompanies us on all the family outings like trips into Edmonton and a planned skiing trip, says Norma.

"Taru's a big help, too," Norma continues about the time she and Lee went to Vancouver. "She babysat and took the responsibility for the children. It made us feel more relaxed, she was here providing company for them," instead of making other arrangements.

And Taru appreciates the fact they don't make her study.

"We remind her to have her homework done," smiles Norma.

"We'll decide more after we've seen her report card," teases Lee.

Lee, Robyn, Taru, Brent and Norma share a laugh, a common sight at home

"I tease her all the time," he says, "and when she doesn't understand she does this" motioning his hand over his head.

"I'm still trying to understand him sometimes," Taru says unshaken by his jokes.

While Taru and the Frasers agree there has been no real culture clash, there are some distinct differences — like peanut butter, salt and vinegar potato chips and dried banana chips.

"There hasn't been any real cost to us except our peanut butter bill has risen dramatically," Lee says jokingly.

They decide after some confusion over the slight language barrier Taru prefers "crunchy" to Lee's favorite "smoothy".

But in all seriousness "she has undergone quite a dietary change," says Lee, "we're not much on fish around here."

Fish is one of Taru's family's main food staples. And her father often takes his boat out in the summer to catch it fresh when he's not working as a mechanical draftsman. Her mother also works managing a maternity wear store back in Finland.

She also doesn't get much soft black bread, one of her favorite homeland delights.

She also misses her sauna, she says. In Finland "most people have saunas and a separate washing room," which replaces Canadians' bathtubs, she says.

Another oddity to Taru is the young age at which Canadians are allowed to drive and the number of them who own cars of their own.

She doesn't mind the fact so much except that under the American-Scandinavian Student Exchange insurance she is not allowed to operate one herself — even if she knew how to drive. Finnish children must be 18 before they can even apply to get a learners permit, she explains.

School is also a big change here because of the variety of courses offered like typing, performing arts and French, which she plans on taking next semester.

She will add French to her other languages — English, Russian, Swedish and, of course, Finnish.

Despite, Norma, "worrying about her travelling on the highway," Taru's Finnish came in real handy when she went with some of her new friends to an Oilers' hockey game.

It gave her a chance to speak briefly with Jari Kurri and Esa Tikkanen, both native Finns now playing for the Oilers.

Perhaps Lee's threats about "washing your mouth out with soap," has stopped Taru from picking up the nasty Canadian habit of adding 'eh' to the ends of her sentences.

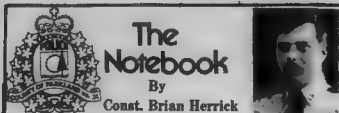

But she does note she has picked up the teenage slang "like" when she is trying to think of something between actual thoughts when talking.

The experience of having a foreign student in their home has made the Frasers think they'd "like their children to have the same opportunity when they're older and if they want to do it," says Norma.

Either way, the Frasers will soon be losing one of their children come the end of school.

"It's going to be very hard to leave this place," says Taru, "I'm going to be crying all over the place."

"There's be five of us" doing that, says Lee. Ah, home away from home.

Section 126 of the Highway Traffic Act states: "No person shall drive a vehicle on a highway if the view through the windshield or windows is so obscured by mud, frost, steam or any other thing as to make the driving of the vehicle hazardous or dangerous."

This section of the Highway Traffic Act is brought to mind at this time of the year when an early-morning frost or a muddy hunting trip may cause your vehicle windows to become obscured, preventing adequate visibility. This could result in a serious accident whether you are parking out of your driveway, or driving on a highway. Remember, other vehicles use the road, and children walk along the shoulders thinking you know exactly where they are.

So, before you start moving your vehicle, please ensure that your visibility is clear on all sides as this may save a life, prevent an accident, or reduce your personal deficit by $15.

Special grant for flood victims

Alberta Public Safety Services Minister Ken Kowalski has announced the government of Alberta has approved a special warrant in the amount of $25 million to assist individuals and municipalities who were affected by the floods during July of this year.

To date, more than 1,300 individuals or businesses have applied for assistance under the Flooding Assistance Program. This is broken down into 120 applicants from Edmonton and 1,280 applicants from rural Alberta. As well, 26 municipalities have registered for disaster assistance and five provincial departments or agencies have also applied.

The latest estimate of total damage for the flooded areas is now approaching $36 million. Alberta Public Safety Services will be forwarding statements to the federal government to receive financial assistance under the Federal Financial Assistance Arrangements. It is an anticipated that approximately $20 million will be received from the federal government as their share of the Disaster Recovery Program.

Congregation has steadily grown

Baptist Church celebrating 25 years

The Calvary Baptist Church has lots to give thanks for as it celebrates its 25th anniversary Nov. 1, 2.

From its humble beginning in May 1961 in the old Elementary 'A' (Eldorado) school to the basement of the original manse on 48 St. in the fall of 1961, where it stayed until 1969 when a new church was first erected in front of the old manse, the congregation has steadily grown.

In fact, it grew to such a point that in 1975 an addition was added to the church to accommodate them all.

To express their thanks to all who have helped over the years the church is having a 25-year anniversary at the Legion Hall with a return of all former pastors.

One sad note regarding the happy event is that the original pastor, Grant Samuelson, has died before seeing how large the church he helped start has grown.

But, his wife Connie will be there in his place if she can, says church secretary Clara Toews.

The weekend celebration will also include speeches by Executive Director of the Baptist Conference of Alberta, Abe Funk, Executive Minister of the conference, Virgil Olson and a message from former pastor Owen Isaacson, Mrs. Toews says.

Also planned is the unveiling of a scale model of the church after it receives a new addition early next year.

Sunday services will be held in the morning, followed in the afternoon by a Praise and Thanksgiving service from former Pastors Roger McClelland and Wes Long. Refreshments will be served after the later session. Both morning and afternoon sessions will be at the Legion Hall to accommodate the expected large numbers.

The weekend's events are open to everyone, but because of a large expected turnout people are encouraged to get their tickets (for Saturday night) early.

Anyone wishing to billet out-of-town guests, help with arrangements, or wanting more information are asked to contact Marian St. Clair or Clara Toews at 542-4774.

In danger of folding

Board members on Drayton Valley's Crisis Line are giving the community another chance to save the service tomorrow evening.

The line is in danger of folding due to a lack of volunteers to staff it, said spokesman Jim Wolfe.

A meeting last week drew nine people, mostly from the board, but only one new person showed up.

Anyone wanting to help save the line is asked to attend tomorrow night's (Wednesday) meeting at 8 p.m. in FMHS art room.

for Grade 9 language arts. Michelle Impey, Tina Monts and Kim Stevenson received an 82 and Heather Power received an 87.

The Breton junior volleyball teams did well against Thorby Oct. 14 with the junior girls winning four out of six games and the senior girls winning five out of six games. The junior boys won four out of six games as well.

Faith Covenant Church

youth group participated in a 24-hour hunger vigil Oct. 10 and 11 to gain a new perspective on the blessings those in North America have, and to raise awareness about world hunger.

The vigil also raised funds for some special visitors from the Third World who will be in this area at the end of October. These visitors are students from the International Youth Tour for Peace and Justice. The tour is being co-sponsored in the Breton community by the Faith Covenant youth group and the village of Breton. A community concert will be held at the church at 7:30 p.m. where the youth group will be sharing with the public some of the things they learned at the vigil.

Yellowhead Report

'Alphabet soup' of taxes gone

By Joe Clark, MP

The National Energy Program of the old Liberal government was based on the belief that governments could run the oil industry better than the private sector.

It used the tax system to direct where exploration and development should occur, and invoked the power of government regulation to try to impose Ottawa's priorities on exploration and service companies, large and small, and on provincial governments.

That attempted state control was a disaster, particularly for Western Canada. I fought it when it was introduced, and we dismantled it when our new government was elected. As usual, state control spawned a new "alphabet soup" of taxes and programs, — the Pip grants, the COSC, the PGRT. Those are all behind us now.

Our new approach was based on two principles first, cooperation by Ottawa with the provinces and the industry; second, a recognition that market forces are a better basis for energy policy than state control. That new approach resulted in the Western Accord, the Newfoundland Accord, the Off shore Agreement with Nova Scotia, and a market-based gas export policy.

That is a dramatic change in just two years.

The last piece to go was the PGRT — the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax. It yielded Ottawa billions of dollars and was designed, by the Liberals, to impose a unique tax burden on the energy industry.

Everyone knew the Liberal program of state control would take time to unravel. That was made more urgent by the collapse in international oil prices.

As an Alberta MP, and a member of the Priorities and Planning Committee of the cabinet, I was naturally deeply involved in dismantling the NEP. In August, in Ottawa, I met a delegation from the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada, which was recommending changes in both federal and provincial policies. Later that month, two days before the cabinet decision to end the PGRT, I convened a meeting in Calgary of the executive of the Canadian Petroleum Association. Both groups accepted the view that, if Ottawa was going to act, there had to be changes too in some of the practices of the industry, and some of the policies of the provincial governments.

The federal government has ended the NEP, as we promised to do. Other serious problems remain for the industry, particularly concerning the royalties regime, but those are in the jurisdiction of provincial governments.

Naturally, I take some personal satisfaction in having won this fight. I started the opposition in parliament to the NEP in 1980 and, six tough years later, helped bring an end to the PGRT. I look forward to working with the industry and provinces toward further reform.

Municipal plan

Help wanted

The Town of Drayton Valley wants your help in planning their future.

Town council are working on a new general municipal plan, but before they accept the final draft they want input from the public.

The Yellowhead Regional Planning Commission, who put the plan together, will be holding open house meetings on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 30 and 31 in the basement conference room at the town office. The Thursday session runs from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. with the Friday open house from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

It's important that anyone with an interest in the town's future drop into one of these meetings, to view the new plan, see displays and talk to the men who assembled the information.

Several goals are outlined in the new plan.

The overall development goal is to further enhance Drayton Valley's position as the centre for natural resource development in the Pembina/Brazeau region while expanding and diversifying the town's economic base.

On the subject of population, the goal is to strive for a sustainable population growth rate that will provide for continued improvement in the current high level of facilities and services offered in the town.

As far as finances are concerned, the goal is to continue to make public facility and service expenditure decisions based on maintaining a sound financial position for the town.

Their goal in regards to the community is to improve upon the current level of provision of community recreational and cultural facilities and services while observing the public finances goal. And, to maintain the current high proportion of open space park and recreation areas in town, and to continue to improve upon the quality and aesthetic nature of this open space.

On the subject of industrial development goals, the new plan proposes to recognize the continued importance of the oil and gas industry to the Drayton Valley economy, and to facilitate the location in town of oil company, branch offices and the retail, service, transportation and light industrial establishments that support the industry. It's also been suggested to recognize the renewed role of the forestry related industries, the town's function as a significant retail and service centre and to recognize the benefits of tourism to the town.

If you're interested in Drayton Valley's future, whether it's from a recreation or industry viewpoint, it's imperative you attend these open house meetings.

Work-sharing program helps local companies

By Gary Legie

As the world price for oil fluctuates, so does work for Drayton Valley's oil field supply services.

Since the crash in oil prices all but stopped drilling activity in Alberta, several local service companies were forced to layoff people or go on a government-sponsored work-sharing program.

The program, funded through Employment and Immigration, runs for 26 weeks, but extensions are given when necessary.

But for two local companies the extensions won't be applied for because "of a slight increase in business" or possible reductions in staff, they report.

For Last Chance Trucking things are looking "a little bit better, but we'll stay on the program as long as we can," said owner Tim Mitchell. "We won't be applying for an extension though, and things have gotten quite a bit busier."

In fact, Last Chance has hired three new employees, two to replace workers who left and one new addition, while under the program, Mitchell said.

The two replacements are already on the program and the third is set to be added.

In total, Last Chance has nine employees on the program.

For Mid-Continent Supply, which is also heavily dependent on oil, things are also looking up, said manager Jim Hiebert.

Mid-Continent was on the program up until two weeks ago, but got off it even though they were still eligible for a couple more weeks and the extension, he said.

"Last week was our last week on the program," Hiebert told The Western Review. "Our time was basically up and work has picked up somewhat so we felt the time was right."

Although things have picked up, Mid-Continent isn't out of the woods just yet. "We'll probably be making a staff cut before the year end," Hiebert said. "It's unavoidable."

Mitchell probably summed it up best.

"So far it (the amount of work) has been off and on. Our biggest problem is that (most of the time) there is nothing to do, but that's up to the oil companies."

For both Last Chance and Mid-Continent "the busy season is still yet to come and it usually starts right about now," said Mitchell.

Views wanted

The New Democrats' task force on agriculture will be at the Black Gold in Drayton Valley on Nov. 6.

The public hearing starts at 1 p.m.

They want to hear the views of Albertans on agriculture in Alberta, the current state of the industry, where it's headed, where it ought to be headed and what we can do to ensure the development of an agricultural industry in Alberta that is rewarding and supports and increases the growth of rural communities.

Derek Fox, MLA for Vegreville, and the New Democrats' agricultural critic, is chairman of the task force.

Hazardous wastes management

Special report

Typical European Hazardous Waste Incinerator

The invention of modern technologies and advances in the 20th century have resulted in an increasingly difficult problem of how to dispose of many products and by-products that have been created. Simple disposal of these goods in local landfill sites is deemed unacceptable, therefore the province of Alberta is actively involved in the construction of a special wastes disposal facility near the town of Swan Hills.

Barrhead Leader publisher Al Blackmere recently returned from the third International Symposium on Hazardous Wastes Management in Odense, Denmark. Blackmere attended as a guest of the Alberta Special Wastes Management Corporation, to learn more about how other developed countries are dealing with this problem, and to tour a facility similar to the one which is being constructed near Swan Hills.

This is the first of a three-part series which Blackmere has written for Alberta newspapers.

Alberta's unique method for locating a suitable site

By Al Blackmere
Special wastes! Toxic wastes! There are several names to describe the materials which have been developed in order to produce many of the modern conveniences we rely on today, yet which must be disposed of when no longer useful.

Many of these special wastes are everyday products every Albertan has used, and probably has in his house or garage at this very moment. Household cleaners, motor oils, farm chemicals, and old paint cans are some examples. Other examples of special wastes, however, include industrial wastes such as PCBs, heavy metal sludges or spent acids.

The government of Alberta first became involved in the special wastes industry in 1979, when a private firm proposed to construct a treatment plant in an industrial community near Edmonton. Public opposition was so forceful, the Minister of Environment placed a moratorium on all off-site development on waste handling facilities until a management strategy could be devised.

The Environment Council of Alberta (ECA), after holding a series of 16 public hearings across the province, recommended the government create an Alberta Crown Corporation, and begin a site selection process for a special wastes facility.

Every municipality in the province was given the opportunity to be briefed on the initial plans and to make a request for the facility to be constructed within its boundaries. Several municipalities responded and the list was short-listed to five possible municipalities, in which plebiscites were held. Two communities, Swan Hills and Ryley, voted 79 and 77 per cent respectively in favor of locating the waste treatment facility nearby.

Based on public acceptance, excellent soil conditions, and other factors, the provincial cabinet, in 1984, chose Swan Hills as the location for the construction of the Alberta Special Wastes Facility.

Dr. Jennifer McQuaide-Cook, a corporate planner with the Alberta Special Wastes Management Corporation, presented a paper discussing site selection to the delegates, representing 30 countries, at the Denmark symposium. As a result, Alberta is deemed a world leader for this unique method of finding a socially acceptable site for a special wastes facility.

Unlike Alberta, where the facility will be located 25 kilometres from the nearest residential area, many European hazardous wastes facilities are located near populated areas. Kommuneke, a plant located in Nyborg, Denmark, is located in that town's industrial park, less than one-half mile from the nearest residential area. Ekokem, the world's newest facility, in Finland, is five kilometres from the town of Riihimäki, population 25,000.

The location of these two facilities did not happen unopposed. The Finnish delegate reported that one resident living approximately 100 metres from the plant strongly objected. Residents of Nyborg, Denmark have complained to their elected officials about the odors emanating from Kommuneke.

Next week: How the special wastes are treated and disposed of.
Third week: Collection, transportation and safety.

Citizen of the Year nominations now being accepted

Do you know someone in Drayton Valley and area who has made a significant contribution to the quality of life? Someone whose dedication and service sets him or her apart?

If so, the Drayton Valley and District Chamber of Commerce would like to hear from you, as they introduce their citizen of the year award.

The chamber will be accepting nominations for citizen of the year until noon on Nov. 24. The winner will be announced at the chamber's general meeting in December.

Nominations must be signed by three Drayton Valley area residents.

Nominees must have been a resident of Drayton Valley and district (within 10 miles) for at least three years.

Letters will be sent out this week to groups and organizations, encouraging them to submit a nomination.

Interested groups can also pick up a copy of the guidelines at The Western Review.

AADAC

When is it a pleasant occasion, when is it dependency?

By George Claxton
AADAC
Director, Program Resources
"Boy, do I need a drink!"
"I've got to have a cigarette."
"I can't start my day without a cup of coffee."

Are these casual comments or a sign of being dependent? It could be either. It is hard to compare these products to what people often think of as an addictive substance even though coffee and cigarettes have addictive qualities similar to alcohol. They are all mood altering drugs.

Most people use mood altering drugs of one sort or another and do not have problems with them. When used appropriately, drugs have positive effects and create no problems. However, it is precisely those positive effects that can be habit-forming and even addictive.

When does an occasional pleasant activity become a habit that you are dependent upon and cannot do without? When does it become an addiction?

One of the signals may be when a person goes from occasionally feeling "I would like" to have a drink to relax, to "I want" to get drunk to relax, to "I need" to drink to handle things and "I can't" get along without it. The gradual increased use of a substance such as alcohol and the loss of freedom to take it or leave it signals dependency.

Another symptom of dependency on a drug is that its use results in increased problems in major life areas. In the case of cigarettes it could be that the only life area affected is health. With other mood-altering drugs, such as alcohol or tranquilizers, health may be the last thing affected. Dependency on the drug to handle emotions and situations may create problems in relationships, on the job, in social activities or in legal and financial areas.

Does this mean that everyone should quit smoking and give up drinking coffee and alcohol? Not necessarily. If the symptoms of dependency (addiction) are not there, then there is no problem. But when the challenges of life are handled by a drug which creates problems for the user, it may be worthwhile to consider an alternative.

Major study

Health habits changing

Canadians are changing their health habits regarding the use of alcohol, tobacco and marijuana.

Although consumption of alcohol by Albertans 18 and older rose from 12 litres of absolute alcohol per adult in 1973 to about 15 litres in 1981, consumption had dropped by 1983. The average Albertan at that time consumed less than 13 litres per year or the equivalent of about 760 bottles of beer per adult.

Alberta teens seemed to reduce their drinking as well. In 1983, fewer teens were drinking (48%) than in 1981 (65%). In addition, 82 per cent of the 1983 teens had never tried drinking compared to 77 per cent of the 1981 teens.

Marijuana used among these same Alberta teens dropped as well. In 1981 25 per cent of them were marijuana users. By 1983, this had fallen to 15 per cent. Notably, other North American studies have reported similar trends.

A major study of Canadian smoking habits showed a general trend to decreased smoking for Canadians 15 and over. In 1981 one-third of Canadians smoked regularly, the lowest level since the study began in the mid-sixties. Only 36 per cent of males were regular smokers in 1981 compared to over half of Canadian males in 1965. Other healthy news was that over one-third of the 1981 smokers had tried to quit in the previous year, especially those aged 15 to 24. Many switched to low tar cigarette.

These trends are encouraging for health promotion professionals and for Canadians in general. They can be seen as part of an overall move towards a more healthy lifestyle.

Peek-a-boo, don't let winter catch you

An Alberta winter can come on so suddenly — one minute you're counting falling leaves and the next minute your car is hidden under a two-foot blanket of snow. The foul-weather mishaps strike as suddenly as the first snowfall.

The disappearing snow scraper

Your car windows are coated with a layer of frost and you can't remember whether your snow scraper is in the hall closet or the kids' toybox.

Relax!

There are some handy substitutes just within your grasp. Your credit card, your pocket comb, or a cassette tape case does a dandy job on tough windshield frost.

Of course, when the really cold weather sets in and your windshield frost turns to windshield ice, you're best advised to use a legitimate scraper — or be prepared to go for long stretches without combing your hair.

The dangling extension cord
Yippeee! Not only did you manage to get a parking stall with a plug-in, you actually remembered to plug the car in.

Oops you forgot to unplug the car. When you arrive at home and attempt to plug the car back in for the night, you discover, much to your chagrin, that the cord has been severed.

The weird case of deflating radials

It's January. We're heading into our 17th consecutive day of cold weather — it's hard to fathom right now, but I mean C-O-L-D, below -25 C.

The trusty machine in the driveway keeps coming through for you. It starts first time every time. Every neighbor in the block is envious. You keep bragging about old faithful — never let you down.

Then one morning you come out to find your tires are only round on one side. That's the curse of the under inflated steel belted radial. You haven't checked the inflation since summer.

Because your car hasn't "conked-out" you haven't had it to a garage for servicing. But the cold outside has caused the steel belts to contract and there wasn't enough air inside to keep the sidewall seal, around the rim, from simply giving way. Voila! Flat tires. They're still perfectly good, properly inflated, but this morning they're as flat as your ego. You've just lost the neighborhood bragging rights.

The mad dash out of the cold
It's the driveway dash 10 yards — start car and return 10 yards to the nice warm house, all in under three minutes.

Bravo! Give yourself a pat on the back. You realized your exposed flesh would freeze in three to four minutes; you realized that you would defy Old Man Winter if you could do it all in under three minutes.

Yup! That car'll be nice and toasty when you leave for the office. But alas, the car's running, the keys are in the ignition, and, out of hi-li, you've locked the car doors. Peek-a-boo will not do.

Just five minutes.

In just five minutes the snow'll blow itself off the car. All you need is five minutes breezing down the road and all the snow will be gone off your windows.

So, you just clean off a little patch on the windshield on the driver's side and a little spot on the rear window. Surprise! You forgot that you have to turn left one block from your house. You can't stop in the middle of the street to clear your windows now and you can't pull over to the curb because you can't see the curb. You'll have to roll down your window, so you can see to make your turn and then pull over. And guess where all the snow on your window goes?

Now you not only have to brush off your windows, but the front seat, your lap and the dashboard.

Peek-a-boo — winter just got you.

Got a question about your car? Would you like objective advice on buying a new or used car, mechanical repair services, technical or warranty work, or lodging a complaint?

Annual supper has been held for more than 40 years

The Drayton Valley Anglican Church was beautifully decorated for the harvest Thanksgiving service, thanks to those who donated food and flowers and to Hi Dahl and her committee who did the decorating.

A planning committee has been formed to plan future activities of the church including the 50th anniversary of the church to be celebrated on Thanksgiving weekend of 1987.

The Anglican Church Women met Oct. 14. For devotions, Marian Palmer read a chapter from the book Something More by Katherine Marshall.

A letter was read from the Edmonton diocese, setting the life members tea on Oct. 24 and the Day of Learning, Nov. 1.

On Sunday, Nov. 2, there will be three baptisms at the church service followed by a pot-luck luncheon in the hall.

Ethel Betton volunteered to look into getting a funeral pall and the material for making book markers for the new book of alternative services.

The Bible of the month goes to Indonesia.

The Mothers' Union met Oct. 20 at which Rev. Barry Parker spoke on women in the church.

The catering committee are busy arranging for the turkey supper on Nov. 20 in the Elks Hall.

Ethel Thomson reminded everyone to get their items ready for the bazaar sale at the turkey supper.

The annual supper has been held in Drayton Valley for the last 40 years or more.

Howling party

Treat the 'trick or treat' set to mouth-watering cake

Give a hoot and holler than say ALAKAZAM!

It is time for spirits and spells and a little sham-sham.

When the 'trick or treat' set arrive for a howling Halloween party, treat them royal with a delicious mouth-watering witch cake from your kitchen.

The Witch Cut-Up Cake will delight both young and old. This enchanting treat can be prepared long before the magic hour so you can truly be prepared when the ghosts and goblins do descend.

Don't forget to include those bewitching and beguiling games that never go out of style at your party too!

Bobbing for apples, dancing while balancing a grapefruit between foreheads, and telling ghost stories all make for a howling successful Halloween party.

Witch Cut-Up Cake
1 baked (9") square cake, cooled

1 recipe icing

1 recipe orange-tinted coconut

green gum drops

Black licorice laces

Semi-sweet chocolate tips

Cake directions:

1. Prepare 1 package (2-layer) sized any flavor cake mix (apric is nice) as directed on package. Bake all prepared batter in a 9-inch square pan.

Cool. Cut cake as shown in diagrams. Arrange pieces on a large tray or foil-covered cardboard.

2. Prepare icing. Place small amount of icing between cake pieces to hold in place. Frost top and sides to give appearance of single piece of cake, rounding off corners.

3. Use orange-tinted coconut for hair, and chocolate-coated coconut for hat, as indicated in picture. Decorate with green gum drop flattened for eye, chocolate chips for wart and black licorice for mouth.

Directions for icing:

Cream ¾ cup peanut butter and 1 tablespoon butter. Beat in 3 cups icing sugar, 7 tablespoons milk and 2 teaspoons vanilla and continue beating until smooth. If necessary, add additional milk until icing is of desired spreading consistency.

Directions for orange-tinted coconut:

Mix ½ cup milk and a few drops red and yellow food coloring in a bowl. Add 1 cup coconut and toss with a fork until coconut is evenly tinted.

Directions for chocolate-coated coconut

Heat 2 squares chocolate and ¼ cup peanut butter in a small saucepan over low heat until partly melted. Remove from heat; stir rapidly until entirely melted and well combined. Add 1 cup coconut and mix well.

Alder Flats

Victory for Alley Cats

By Bernice Johnson
388-3863

Sympathy is extended to Diana and Jim Rowan and sons on the death of her mother.

Sympathy also goes to Alex and Eleanor Danyluk and families on the death of his brother George, of Red Water, at the age of 87 years. Funeral services were held at the Evergreen Chapel in Edmonton.

The Alder Flats ladies' hockey team, the Alley Cats, played an early exhibition game Oct. 4 at Drayton Valley against the newly-formed Drayton Valley girls team. Alley Cats were the victors with Sandy Stewart scoring six goals, Yvonne Miller with four, Melanee Mackay had two goals and Lianne Kwiatkowski scored four.

The Alley Cats are looking for sponsors to help with the expenses of travelling, tournaments, etc. Any willing or interested parties can call Linda at 388-2400. They would appreciate any assistance.

The community library will be opening Monday, Oct. 29 at 7:30 to 9 p.m. The library is located in the Alder Flats school. Memberships are available: family, $3.50 and single membership, $2. Everyone welcome.

There are several area residents concerned about Junction 22. Motorists are failing to stop before crossing from Highway 22, regardless of speed bumps and stop signs. Anyone concerned is asked to write M.I.A. Shirley Crispas, 319 Legislature Building, Edmonton, AB T5K 2B6.

Alder Flats was well represented at the Ray Griffin show in Winfield Oct. 9.

Buck Lake

Bake sale nets $151.51

By LeOpal Larsson
388-2122

The bake sale held Oct. 4 in the curling lobby netted $151.50. The black forest cake, donated by Bev Siegel for a draw, brought in $54.25 and was won by Alex Lyka. Total proceeds were $205.75 and will be divided equally between the ladies club and agriculture society. Thanks to everyone who helped and/or donated.

Norman Lowe of Buck Lake won the quilt raffled by the ladies club.

The next ladies club meeting will be Nov. 12, 2 p.m. at the home of Jean Doty.

A TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) club is now meeting in the Alder Flats, Buck Lake area. Wednesday nights at 7:30 in the Buck Lake school activity room. New members are always welcome. For more information call Grace Bedford at 388-3023 at work or 388-3890 at home.

Thanksgiving guests at the home of Peter and Kathleen Kiss were Les, Kathy, Kent, Jordan and Kelsie. Speaker: Louis Kiss, Ruth Spratt; and Ari and Mary Speakman of Wetaskiwin.

Congratulations to Terry Kiss, granddaughter of Peter and Kathleen Kiss, on her recent engagement to Murray Jacobs. The couple also called in on her grandparents and Ari and Betty Glavel, her aunt and uncle.

Relationships appear to be askew these days

By Ray Martin
Relationships between the federal government and the provincial government certainly seem to be askew these days.

First we have Marcel Masse and Neil Webber at odds with each other over the energy price crisis facing our province. Federal aid for the industry appears not to be forthcoming. Recent indications that the federal energy minister and his counterparts, despite their acknowledgement that energy prices and the difficulties being experienced as a result of them are national problems, are not prepared to provide us with any assistance. It's now not just a reluctance or a lack of knowledge as to how to help, but rather "nos" and reasons as to federal aid can't be provided. It appears that our provincial government is in capable of expressing the dire straits that we find ourselves in, or what the people to whom they are talking don't fully appreciate our problems, or have ears full of...

The recent strike-lockout of grain handlers in Thunder Bay is another example.

Calls from our provincial agriculture minister were, for weeks, to no avail. Grain sat in terminals, idle rail cars, grain elevators, farmer's storage bins and on the field while the federal government wiled away its time, getting around to appointing a mediator, and pressuring the parties to end their dispute.

Comment

Despite the best crops in years, farmers' incomes have been adversely affected. Estimates range from a few million dollars to $200 million over all the prairies. Not satisfied with the damage done, a lock-out of longshoremen was allowed to occur, despite the federal government's knowledge of the potential for this event to happen.

Obviously, the flak rained over Thunder Bay made the feds less hesitant to intervene when demands to do so were made by our agriculture minister. The adage "If at first you don't succeed..." sticks in my mind.

Now we have Alberta's officials being taken by surprise with Ottawa's announcement of a $36 million project to improve rail transportation for Peace River grain. Neither Economic Development Minister Larry Shabener Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga knew of the plan beforehand. When questioned during the legislature session about future plans to this effect by our own agriculture critic, Derek Fox, Mr. Elzinga indicated that such moves were not required, and were economically unfeasible. No wonder his surprise, and no wonder the surprise of Mr. Shabener when he states that government-funded Alberta Resources Railway, which already moves grain from this area, stands to lose business from the newly proposed rail link.

Brian Mulroney on a trip to Moncton recently, said he was going with the intent to consult provincial premiers. He said "consultation was not present in the past or if present was not adequate." Such statements make me laugh in the face of such an obvious lack of consultation or even prior notice. Is it any wonder that I wonder what's going on?

4-H

Contest on Nov. 9

By Leah Dick
1-J Winter Assistant
Have you ever heard the saying "What a man does for himself dies with him. What he does for his community, lives long after he has gone." This is what I believe is the philosophy of the 4-H movement.

Hi, my name is Leah Dick and I am the winter assistant in the regional 4-H office in Barrhead. I will be working with Janet Van Rosseel, helping to organize many 4-H winter activities.

For some of you, my name may be familiar. I am from the Linaria area which is the half-way point between Barrhead and Westlock.

There I was a member of the Sunnibend Beef Club for eight years. While involved in the 4-H program, I participated in public speaking, camps and exchange programs, and various demonstrations and workshops. Because of these programs, I have gained a unique opportunity for growth and personal development through services to others.

After graduating from high school, I attended the University of Alberta in the faculty of agriculture for one year. Keeping in tradition, I joined the 4-H Alumni Club as well as the Agriculture Club which kept me as active as ever with the 4-H program.

The highlight of my 4-H experiences was the satisfaction and recognition of many years of hard work and involvement in the 4-H program. In recognition of my involvement in both 4-H and the community, I was awarded Alberta's Youth of the Year. It is true that you will get the most out of 4-H by being involved in all that 4-H has to offer.

So check it out, become part of the 4-H team and remember "the direction we are facing has a lot to do with our destination."

Coming events:
Provincial leaders conference - conference will be Nov. 7-9 in Calgary.

4-H regional leader's workshop - registration deadline: Friday, Oct. 31.

Multi-project judging and decision-making contest - Sunday, Nov. 9 at Edmonton Northlands Agricom

Regional council meeting - meeting will be held Saturday, Nov. 29, 9:30 a.m. in the Edmonton Northlands Agricom.

Alberta Culture

Museum on wheels visits the area

Can you name the smallest dinosaur ever found? Do you know why birds migrate away from Alberta? Or, when the first "instant" camera was designed?

You can find all the answers in Alberta Culture's mobile museum, a caravan which will be visiting Winfield, Alder Flats, Breton, Lindale and Warburg starting this Friday.

The caravan which features Alberta's Dinosaurs, Wings of Spring, Photographing Alberta and the One Room Schoolhouse will be at the Winfield school this Friday, Oct. 31 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Residents of Alder Flats and area can visit the displays Nov. 2 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and again on Nov. 3 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the school.

The Caravan, currently on a province-wide tour, will be at the Breton school on Nov. 5 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. and in Lindale on Nov. 7 at the school from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

The final stop is Warburg for a three-day visit, Nov. 9-11. The displays will be open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

on Nov. 9 and 11 and 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. on Nov. 10, also in the school.

Admission is free.

The caravan is comprised of four displays which are installed in large semi-trailers with a fifth trailer housing the power plants and other supporting equipment.

The provincial Museum of Alberta operates the caravan exhibits on behalf of Alberta Culture, to provide the opportunity for rural residents to visit educational and cultural displays in their own community.

Disappointment in trade ruling

Jim Horsman, minister of Alberta Federal and Intergovernmental Affairs, and Don Sparrow, minister of Alberta Forestry, Lands and Wildlife, have voiced their disappointment at the United States' trade ruling on Canadian softwood lumber announced recently.

"The preliminary decision by the United States Commerce Department to impose a countervail duty of 15 per cent on Canadian softwood lumber imports is the result of years of American industry and political pressure," said Horsman.

"Despite the decision, neither Alberta nor Canada, nor other producing provinces, believe that Canadian stumpage fee practices constitute a subsidy. We consider this punitive action to be unfair and unwarranted."

"The Alberta government has been highly supportive of the federal government's efforts to resolve the dispute. Unfortunately, the Commerce Department has ruled in favor of the United States lumber industry petition," he explained.

Sparrow expressed his concern about the impact on the forestry industry. "Alberta's softwood lumber exports to the United States amounted to $230 million in 1985. A major reduction in sales as a result of increased cost to American buyers could adversely affect our local industry. In some provinces the effect could be devastating."

"We will be meeting with the federal government and other provinces as soon as possible to address this issue. As well, the Alberta government will work closely with the private sector to ensure the continued viability of the Alberta lumber industry," Sparrow said.

Both ministers urged the federal government to continue to pursue all its rights under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), including the current GATT panel process to review the situation.

"This particular counter-vail action reinforces the necessity for a Canada United States free trade agreement to remove the uncertainty created by trade action harassment. The surest way to secure market access is to reach a comprehensive understanding on trade practices," Horsman concluded.

National campaign

Disease linked to ASA

A national campaign to inform parents and teenagers about Reye's syndrome and its possible link with acetylsalicylic acid (ASA) is underway.

Almost five million copies of the pamphlet Reye's Syndrome, all Parents and Teenagers Be Informed have been distributed by Health and Welfare Canada with October family allowance cheques, through all pharmacies in cooperation with the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, and through doctors' offices and hospitals. The Canadian Paediatric Society collaborated in the preparation of the text.

It notes that children and teenagers who take salicylates for flu or chicken pox may be at greater risk of contracting Reye's syndrome, a rare but potentially fatal disease. A total of 11 cases has been suspected or confirmed in the first six months of 1986.

Manufacturers of ASA are now printing warnings on product labels advising consultation with a physician before giving ASA to children or teenagers with chicken pox or the flu.

Provincial health of officials, medical practitioners, the Consumers Association of Canada and the Reye's Syndrome Foundation of Canada have also been asked to cooperate in informing the public.

This is the second cheque insert related to this subject. A leaflet, Treating Fever in Your Child, was issued with family allowance cheques in 1983.

Skating

If you're still looking for something to do, try the Centennial Civic Arena.

The Drayton Valley sports facility offers a number of public skating sessions.

If you can get away from the office at noon, the rink is open for public skating on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from noon to 1 p.m.

There's also public skating on Friday nights from 8:45 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 2:15 p.m.

If you require more information on activities at the arena call 542-7537.

Moon Lake News

By Alma Johnson
727-2212

Joan Kirkpatrick of Toronto, Ont. visited her parents, the Frank Banks Sr. on Thanksgiving weekend.

David, the young son of Dave and Dorleen Banks was christened Oct. 12.

Jim and Sheila Wilson of Buck Lake were recent visitors at the Norm and Glenn Johnson farm.

Our community was shocked and saddened by the sudden death of Sonja Law in a tragic accident. Sympathy thoughts are with Larry and Maryann, Jim and Harley and Ed and Carmel at this time.

The turkey shoot and dinner at the hall had a fair attendance.

Chester and Debbie Town and girls visited her parents Oct. 12.

Donna and Lanny Regamy and family of Spruce Grove were Thanksgiving visitors at her parents, Stan and Margaret Woloszyn.

Ted Spuehler is visiting relatives in Switzerland for a few weeks.

Halloween

Unicef - children helping children

Halloween is for children, and that's why on Halloween children across Drayton Valley will be carrying Unicef boxes.

Because Unicef is children helping children.

Last year caring children across Canada helped raise more than $2 million. In Drayton Valley they raised $800 alone, not a bad total for a "one-day random 1417," says local Unicef organizer Peggy Tyler.

But because it is random collecting, not all those wishing to donate are contacted, so banks around Drayton Valley will also be sporting the bright orange Unicef boxes until Nov. 5.

This year's worldwide Unicef theme is clean water, nutrition, health and education - rare, but important aspects of underdeveloped nations' survival.

"Unicef gives children a global understanding of the world and charity," says Tyler. "It gives them a good feeling of being a volunteer who has helped the world."

Smoke alarms should be tested at least once a month

People wouldn't let the batteries in their portable televisions go dead — but, few exercise the same diligence when it comes to checking the ones in their family's smoke detectors.

And they should because statistics show about 90 per cent of all residential fire deaths occur in homes with faulty or no smoke alarm.

"They should be tested a minimum of once a month, but the majority of them only get tested when something is burning on the range," says Drayton Valley Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson.

Location of alarms is as important as testing them, too, says Fuson, and quite often one per house is not enough.

"The rule of thumb is one per floor, located between the sleeping area and the rest of the house," he says. "And one in the basement is a good idea, especially if bedrooms are located there."

Smoke detectors "don't really assist us in extinguishing a blaze, they are basically designed to assist in an early evacuation and we don't have to go searching for people," says the chief. "And they definitely help in limiting property damage," because of an earlier warning and response time.

Another item no home should be without, according to Fuson, is a tested and working ABC (multi-purpose) fire extinguisher.

These should be located outside of furnace rooms and near an exit in the kitchen in case a quick escape is called for, he says.

Although regulations call for hydro-static pressure testing of most extinguishers every 10-12 years, they should be inspected annually and recharged even after minor use because the propellant in them is reduced.

However, the most common problem with fire extinguishers isn't with the unit, but with people not knowing how to use them. This can be overcome by reading the instructions on each model and picking one that is easily operated.

The recent Paul Hann show was well attended at the community hall. The children and adults really enjoyed the show and the children learned a couple of magic tricks.

Sympathy is extended to the family and friends of Mrs. Roger Lacombe on the death of her father in Edmonton.

Elinore Reid, Jim Lyndia and family spent Thanksgiving in Edmonton and attended the christening of the Donald Reid's son.

Visiting at the Ray Paulsons was daughter Chris and family of Calgary.

Visiting at the Abbie Winfields was daughter Joan and husband and granddaughter, husband and family of Edmonton.

Alberta Agriculture

Public hearing Dec. 3

The Alberta Agricultural Development Corporation (AADC) will hold a public hearing in Evansburg on Dec. 3.

Twenty-nine hearings are scheduled across the province beginning early in November and running until late January. The session at Evansburg is the only one scheduled in this area.

A review committee, recently appointed by Shirley Cripps, Drayton Valley M.L.A. and Associate Minister of Agriculture, to review the role and mandate of the AADC, assess the financial needs of Alberta farmers and agri-businesses, and propose innovative mechanisms for financing capital needs of agricultural in the years ahead.

As part of the comprehensive review, the panel will be looking to Alberta producers and agri-businesses for their input by conducting these public meetings. The meetings will provide the opportunity for Albertans to, speak to the panel. All farm, organizations, interested individuals, companies and businesses having concerns, are urged to attend and submit briefs expressing their viewpoints.

The Ernie Russells spent a week visiting relatives in Kamloops.

The Bruce Tindalls spent a few days at their son's in Edmonton.

The George Huts entertained relatives from B.C. Violet Jorgenson of Drayton Valley was visiting relatives in the area for Thanksgiving.

The Thanksgiving Monday night bingo was well attended. The number 7 jackpot was more than $2,800. The bonanza and flash board were more than $600.

Get well wishes to John Woychuk and Karen Arnell.

Kevin Benson left recently to play hockey in west Germany. He will be there for a couple of months.

The Ladies Aid held their meeting recently in the seniors' Drop-In Centre. It was voted to upgrade the old graves and put markers on the unmarked graves in the Ladies Aid Cemetery. Ladies Aid bingo will be Friday, Nov. 7.

The seniors will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 22 (today) at 2 p.m. in the centre.

A CanSurmount meeting will be held in the FCSS office on Tuesday, Oct. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

HOLLYWOOD REPORT

Van Dyke is still in brother's shadow

By Ian Harner

HOLLYWOOD — If there were any justice in this town, Jerry Van Dyke would by now, at 55, have emerged from the shadow of his big brother Dick to become a national star in his own right, basking in the glory of a hit TV sitcom. He takes a step or two closer to fame with a role in "Fresno," this month's supercop send-up on CBS. And there hangs a tale that would have reduced weaker men to tears of despair. Van Dyke tells the story of an encounter in Phoenix, Ariz., about 10 years ago with a young man who came backstage after one of his club performances and introduced himself as an aspiring comedy writer. "You meet these guys a lot, but you learn never to turn them away — if you get one good joke out of the meeting, it will have been worth it," he says. Van Dyke read some of the young man's material. He liked it so much that he immediately offered to pay him three times the $100 a week he was making with the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce, and set him up as a writer in Hollywood.

Program didn't come as fast as Van Dyke and his protégé had hoped, but eventually, the comedian used connections to get a sample script in front of a key executive of "Taxi," then a maverick hit for ABC. The script kicked the door wide open, and Van Dyke's Phoenix friend was on his way to fame and fortune. A year or two later, the same friend had created a sitcom vehicle for one of the nation's top comedians, and he had Van Dyke in mind for a key role. The star approved the choice, the production company was enthusiastic, contracts were exchanged conditional upon network approval, and Van Dyke was convinced that he'd finally found a hit to erase the memory of "My Mother, the Car."

Then something went wrong. The top programmer at CBS was outraged that a key role had been cast without his approval. He insisted that Van Dyke be ousted in favor of his personal choice for the part. The top comic was Bob Newhart, the hit sitcom was the show of the same name, the writer/creator of the series was Barry Kemp, and the role he wrote with Jerry in mind was George, the dunderheaded caretaker of the Stratford Inn, played by Tom Poston.

"Fresno," also created by Kemp, is Van Dyke's consolation prize.
